Antiterrorism: Exposing the Deep State

No. 086

New World News Bureau

June 08/19

The “Deep State” is the proto-government aimed at the creation of a “New World Order” (Novus Ordo Seclorum), a world ruled by one government. This is undoubtedly the organization referred to by President John F. Kennedy in a speech given at the Waldorf Astoria in April 1961:

“For we are opposed around the world by a monolithic and ruthless conspiracy . . . a system which has conscripted vast human and material resources into the building of a tightly knit, highly efficient machine that combines military, diplomatic, intelligence, economic, scientific and political operations.” President John F. Kennedy speaking at the Waldorf Astoria, April 1961.

The Forensic Desk

This section may not appear in every future issue of the Intelligencer, but will be included when any opportunities for forensic analysis arise. In this issue, we demonstrate a simple technique for photo analysis.

The focus for this issue will be a pair of photographs that appeared in the print and broadcast media recently. They feature one John Walker Lindh, a young American who allegedly joined the Taliban. The two photographs appeared in the media side by side, as below, so as to enable the average reader to see that the man wearing the kafiyyeh and beard is the same man as the clean shaven individual beside him. One is struck immediately by the difference in the eyebrows and in the eye colour. However, one could argue that the man on the left used to pluck his eyebrows, as he did not prefer the bushy look. As for the eye colour, one could argue that one of them is wearing coloured contact lenses; perhaps it was the man on the right, wanting to blend in with his darker comrades.

However, if we examine the width between the eyes in relation to the width of the skull, a more profound difference emerges, one that we can not dispose of so easily. To analyze this difference, we downloaded two larger images of each face separately (using Google Images), enlarged versions that could be measured more accurately.

It was decided to focus on the inter-ocular distance as well as the width of the head. Since the photographs were to different scales, the resulting measurements could not be compared directly. However, a scale-independent measure would result from taking ratios according to the following formula:

$$\frac{\text{width of head}}{\text{interocular distance}}$$

In order to make such measurements accurately, one may use a millimetre ruler, both to draw and to measure. For interocular distance, one draws a vertical line through the centre of each pupil in both cases, then measures the distance between the lines that result. A proxy for head width was necessary owing to the beard and headgear. Therefore, we used the outside distance from ear to ear. For this, one draws another pair of vertical lines tangent to the outer rim of each ear, then, measures the distance between the resulting lines.

The measurements appear below, participating in their respective ratios:

A simple calculation reveals that the ratio for the left image is 16.4 % larger than the ratio for the right image. The error term for the measurements does not exceed 2 mm in each case and the resulting error for either ratio is therefore approximately 0.17 %, too small to account for the discrepancy in the ratios.

The only remaining difficulty remains with the ears in either image. The ratio of the right-hand image would be larger if the kaffiyeh is, in some manner, flattening the man's ears against his head. However, both ears appear to be free of the kaffiyeh and have taken their normal position. There is, of course, some variation in the extent to which human ears protrude from the head and the cases at hand fall within this range. A further difficulty would emerge if it were possible for basic bodily measurements to change as a result of joining the Taliban, but we must reject this possibility out of hand.

This analysis thus arrives at the conclusion that the two men pictured above are different individuals. As for which of them (if either) is John Walker Lindh, who knows? The rather obvious difference between the two faces, absent the analysis just made, raises a question: are people supposed to spot these anomalies, whether consciously or subliminally?
